A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Revival of Selective Service and an annual defense budget equal to the entire four-year cost of the Marshall Plan were offered to Congress by this country's top ranking defense officials as the certain alternative to an adequate European Recovery Program. Secretary Marshall said in a speech that while Congress undoubtedly could improve some details any "radical alteration" might jeopardize the program.

This stand was characterized by Senator Taft as "utterly indefensible" in saying he could trim President Truman's budget by $4,000,000 "providing Marshall Plan appropriations and other foreign expenditures estimates are not regarded as sacrosanct."

The House passed by unanimous voice vote and sent to the Senate the bill democratizing the system of courts martial.

DRIVER COURSES ARE GREAT AID TO PUPILS

Such Training Provides Scientific Information States Officer

'CENTRIFUGAL FORCE'

Pointing out that the boys and girls, who are taking driver training courses in the Bucks county schools, are getting scientific information, Trooper Leland Emery, safety education officer of the Doylestown sub-station of the Penna. State Police, said: "We show, and prove to them, that man's speed laws may not always be observed but nature's or science's laws always are."

Trooper Emery, who explained that too many parents and some teachers still don't believe in the importance of teaching boys and girls safety education, said: "No matter how expert we may be as drivers, we are apt to fall into habits of driving that don't quite measure up to what we know is right."

"All drivers know they have to be careful about passing cars. Many drivers have passed a car and wondered if they could make the pass or not."

"When you try to pass a car that is going 40 miles an hour, it is just the same thing as if you tried to pass a standing string of cars which is 300 feet long, depending on the speed."

"In other words, it's like passing at least 18 cars parked bumper to bumper on the highway and if you are a good driver you will never pass a car until you are absolutely sure there is no car coming toward you."

"Taking curves and turning corners involves certain rules and laws of science which you can't beat. The law of momentum plays."

'IF' AND GOLD

Several days ago a group of more than fifty of the nation's outstanding economists answered a series of questions on the causes and cure of the inflation from which the country is suffering.

They were in general agreement on the basic causes—which they conceded were overspending by the national government, coupled with the use of currency or "dollars" that were not real money at all, but merely evidences of debt.

As to the remedies, they agreed that inflation can be halted only by drastic reduction in Federal spending, while simultaneously American industry would be put on a more productive and more profitable basis. The majority of them favored sharp tax reductions as an incentive for venture capital and hence a stimulus for private production.

Most of them appeared also to be in agreement with the thought that, as a long range proposition, the thing to shoot for is a return to the gold standard. That means, in plainer English, simply to get ourselves back to the condition as it existed before the New Deal—when anyone who had a dollar bill could, if he wished, go almost anywhere and get either a "gold certificate" or a dollar in gold for his money.

Some will ask, if that is what is needed, why can't the government do so at once? It could do so. As a matter of fact, it has the gold on hand to make a start. The Treasury Statement (January 13) lists as among the Treasury assets: "Gold, $22,772,-$49,441."

The Treasury also listed as cash balance on hand the sum of $2,516,126,632.56. This is money which has come back to the Treasury from various sources, and which will be, in line with the Truman policy in such matters, presently put back in circulation. Most of it probably will be handed out to those who want to cash their War Bonds.

It might be stated that the re-issue of this "cash balance" is one of several strongly inflationary steps upon which the President has insisted. Buying up the bonds at par or better, when in the normal course of bond transactions they would be, at their present stage, selling for substantially less than par, is inflationary by reason of giving more for them than, dollar for dollar, ought to be paid. Moreover, every dollar thus put into circulation increases the buying capacity of the country, and by the inevitable bidding-up process, helps force prices higher.

HOUSE RESTORATION TIPS ARE PRESENTED

Should Follow Lines On Which They Were Built, Martin Reminds

FOUR MAIN TYPES

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 16.—Restoration of old homes should follow along the lines on which they were built, Fred F. Martin, local architect, informed members of Doylestown Nature Club, here, on Monday.

"When the old houses were built nothing was done unless it had a practical meaning behind it," he reminded.

After giving an interesting history of the people who built the houses, he explained how the different homes typified the financial conditions of the owners at the time they were built.

These included four types, the farm house, the manor house, the house built to rent and the town house. As examples, he showed pictures and diagrams of the Isaiah Warren house, built in 1793, in Wrightstown; the Stewart-Chapman farm in New Britain, called "The Highlands," built in 1791; the William-Rodman house, built in 1773 in Neshaminy; and the Siegler town house built in 1829.

He stated that these old buildings act as standards of quality in beauty and construction. He expressed the hope that, when they are restored and added to, it will be done with the same logical process of thinking that was used by their creators.

It was announced that there is a very interesting collection of Colonial pictures in Mercer Museum. Mrs. Harry J. Shoemaker reported that Mrs. Frank Swain saw a large flock of robins the day before Christmas.

It was announced that the annual meeting for road conservation will be held in Harrisburg, January 29. Mrs. McComas described the project to send "Peace" seeds to Europe, which will be distributed through the Church World Service. Mrs. Howard Smith was appointed chairman. The club will make a donation to the project.

Miss Case announced one new member, Mrs. Harry Hasenauer.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. John H. Elftman.

Weatherman Predicts Colder Weather Tomorrow

Bucks county residents continued to shiver today as the weatherman gloomily forecast that the sub-freezing temperatures of yesterday—the c-c-c-cold January 15th in 21 years—would continue.

In terminology alone, he said today's "high" would reach 20 degrees—still two below freezing—but it would be windy and much colder in the afternoon and night.

And, perish the thought, it will be much c-c-c-colder tomorrow!

States Officer*'CENTRIFUGAL FORCE'

Pointing out that the boys and girls, who are taking driver training courses in the Bucks county schools, are getting scientific information, Trooper Leland Emery, safety education officer of the Doylestown sub-station of the Penna. State Police, said: "We show, and prove to them, that man's speed laws may not always be observed but nature's or science's laws always are."

Trooper Emery, who explained that too many parents and some teachers still don't believe in the importance of teaching boys and girls safety education, said: "No matter how expert we may be as drivers, we are apt to fall into habits of driving that don't quite measure up to what we know is right."

"All drivers know they have to be careful about passing cars. Many drivers have passed a car and wondered if they could make the pass or not."

"When you try to pass a car that is going 40 miles an hour, it is just the same thing as if you tried to pass a standing string of cars which is 300 feet long, depending on the speed."

"In other words, it's like passing at least 18 cars parked bumper to bumper on the highway and if you are a good driver you will never pass a car until you are absolutely sure there is no car coming toward you."

"Taking curves and turning corners involves certain rules and laws of science which you can't beat. The law of momentum plays

Removing Snow from In Front of Co. Seat Meters

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 16—In order to facilitate parking at meters in mid-town snow is being cleared from the curb area.

Borough officials have announced that the Doylestown parking meters will remain in operation despite the heavy snows the county seat has experienced, and which prevented parking near many curbs.

The borough has rented a small, powerful scoop and loader. It is attached to a small tractor-type vehicle and operated by Richard and George Coulton.

These included four types, the farm house, the manor house, the house built to rent and the town house. As examples, he showed pictures and diagrams of the Isalah Warren house, built in 1793, in Wrightstown; the Stewart-Chapman farm in New Britain, called "The Highlands", built in 1791; the William-Rodman house, built in 1773 in Neshaminy and the Siegler town house built in 1829.

He stated that these old buildings act as standards of quality in beauty and construction. He expressed the hope that, when they are restored and added to, it will be done with the same logical process of thinking that was used by their creators.

It was announced that there is a very interesting collection of Colonial pictures in Mercer Museum.

Mrs. Harry J. Shoemaker reported that Mrs. Frank Swain saw a large flock of robins the day before Christmas.

It was announced that the annual meeting for road conservation will be held in Harrisburg, January 29.

Mrs. McComas described the project to send "Peace" seeds to Europe, which will be distributed through the Church World Service. Mrs. Howard Smith was appointed chairman. The club will make a donation to the project.

Miss Case announced one new member, Mrs. Harry Hasenauer.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. John H. Eitman.

Weatherman Predicts
Colder Weather Tomorrow

Bucks county residents continued to shiver today as the weatherman gloomily forecast that the sub-freezing temperatures of yesterday—the c-c-c-coldest January 15th in 21 years—would continue.

In terminology alone, he said today's "high" would reach 20 degrees—still two below freezing—but it would be windy and much colder in the afternoon and night.

And, perish the thought, it will be much c-c-c-colder tomorrow!

"IF" AND GOLD

Several days ago a group of more than fifty of the nation's outstanding economists answered a series of questions on the causes and cure of the inflation from which the country is suffering.

They were in general agreement on the basic causes—which they conceded were overspending by the national government, coupled with the use of currency or "dollars" that were not real money at all, but merely evidences of debt.

As to the remedies, they agreed that inflation can be halted only by drastic reduction in Federal spending, while simultaneously American industry would be put on a more productive and more profitable basis. The majority of them favored sharp tax reductions as an incentive for venture capital and hence a stimulus for private production.

Most of them appeared also to be in agreement with the thought that, as a long range proposition, the thing to shoot for is a return to the gold standard. That means, in plainer English, simply to get ourselves back to the condition as it existed before the New Deal—when anyone who had a dollar bill could, if he wished, go almost anywhere and get either a "gold certificate" or a dollar in gold for his money.

Some will ask, if that is what is needed, why can't the government do so at once? It could do so. As a matter of fact, it has the gold on hand to make a start. The Treasury Statement (January 13) lists as among the Treasury assets: "Gold, $22,772,849,441."

The Treasury also listed as cash balance on hand the sum of $2,516,126,632.56. This is money which has come back to the Treasury from various sources, and which will be, in line with the Truman policy in such matters, presently put back in circulation. Most of it probably will be handed out to those who want to cash their War Bonds.

It might be stated that the re-issue of this "cash balance" is one of several strongly inflationary steps upon which the President has insisted. Buying up the bonds at par or better, when in the normal course of bond transactions they would be, at their present stage, selling for substantially less than par, is inflationary by reason of giving more for them than, dollar for dollar, ought to be paid. Moreover, every dollar thus put into circulation increases the buying capacity of the country, and by the inevitable bidding-up process, helps force prices higher.

Martin Reminds*FOUR MAIN TYPES

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 16—Restoration of old homes should follow along the lines on which they were built, Fred F. Martin, local architect, informed members of Doylestown Nature Club, here, on Monday.

"When the old houses were built nothing was done unless it had a practical meaning behind it," he reminded.

After giving an interesting history of the people who built the houses, he explained how the different homes typified the financial conditions of the owners at the time that they were built.

These included four types, the farm house, the manor house, the house built to rent and the town house. As examples, he showed pictures and diagrams of the Isalah Warren house, built in 1793, in Wrightstown; the Stewart-Chapman farm in New Britain, called "The Highlands", built in 1791; the William-Rodman house, built in 1773 in Neshaminy and the Siegler town house built in 1829.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1948

Man is a great hand at predicting. It is a favorite avocation and, sometimes, a true vocation. It is indulged in, with varying degrees of success, by sports editors, commentators, columnists, politicians, economists and a legion of others, scholars included.

It is not a new art. Even the ancient Greeks had a bent for it, and their imaginative genius and spirit of disinterested inquiry oftentimes gave birth to the most ingenious speculations. Anaximander, for instance, actually scored a newsbeat on the modern theory of the evolution of life. Yet he operated within narrow horizons, in a world where a few years back and a few miles ahead brought him to the unknown.

Today our knowledge of the past has been extended to the dawn of human history—and beyond. We have evidence that man departed from an anthropoid status a million years ago, perhaps more, and we have traced his gradual evolution into the form in which we see him today.

Which brings us out of the Miocene period of geological history, and to the prediction of Dr. Harry L. Shapiro, chairman of the Anthropology Department of the Museum of Natural History in New York, that a half million years from now man's head will be round as a marble and just as bald. "Sparsely covered with hair," is the way he actually put it.

Dr. Shapiro is a learned man, and he draws on the wisdom of the ages for his glimpse into the future. But we earnestly hope that in this prognostication he has come an anthropological cropper.

COLD FIGHTERS

The war against the cold has been going on for so long that its beginnings are lost in antiquity. From time to time science has developed a weapon that looked good and raised hopes of victory, only to confess later that the deadlock was still unbroken. To date this scourge is unconquered.

Now comes an especially encouraging communique from one sector of the front. The United States Public Health Service reports that science has isolated the agent producing one type of cold—the type known as sinusitis—and has been able to transmit the element to others by using this agent. Science has also been able to grow the agent in eggs and use the product to infect persons free of colds.

All this has been done by Dr. Norman H. Topping and Leon T. Atlas, working with human volunteers at the Lorton Reformatory, Washington, D. C. Meanwhile Dr. R. W. G. Wyckoff has made preliminary electron microscope observations in which, he says, he saw "characteristic particles of the same general size as the viruses of the influenza type but readily distinguishable from them." His work seems to bear out similar results reported from Britain.

If jaw movement controls facial beauty, as a scientist says, why aren't politicians more handsome?

"If" and Gold

But there is a still stronger reason, though perhaps harder to see, why the process is inflationary. This "money" isn't money at all, in the sense of itself having inherent value (like gold) or of being redeemable in a stated amount of a commodity having stable value.

The money is evidence of debt. It was issued by the process called "deficit financing," which means that the government borrows money, and then on this debt issued both some form of bond and a certain amount of paper currency. The wording of the Federal Reserve bills proves this beyond question: they say on them, in the purest English, that they are a promise to pay—that they are, in effect, no more than promissory notes against the general credit of the government.

Now, when a bank or an individual with large debts outstanding come in possession of some of the notes, what is done with them?

They are destroyed, of course. Doing anything else with them is inflationary, and especially dangerous because it is not so recognized. Turning them over for War Bonds is just swapping one debt for another. The fact of the matter is that the national currency is just as much a part of the national debt as the debt itself—and much more hazardous.

With this background, let's go back to the proposition of issuing some of the nation's gold as money.

"If" this were done, what would happen?

The process would be simple, as stated above. Instead of using the "cash" in the Treasury to retire bonds, gold could be issued.

The effect of such an act, in our present stage of national finances, would be disastrous. A panic would result. Very likely the entire structure of government credit would be undermined. And what that would mean can be hinted by remembering that banks and insurance companies have tremendous portions of their assets—up to two-thirds of them—invested in government securities.

Trying to picture what would happen, and why, is one of the best approaches to understanding how very far Uncle Sam has travelled along the crimson path of inflation.

To begin with, every person who had any currency in his possession would join in the scramble to swap it for gold. If War Bonds were redeemable in gold, every holder would fall in line to turn his in.

Is that clear? Moreover, there wouldn't begin to be enough gold to go around. While the Treasury lists $22 billions of it, most or all of this is in the form of gold certificates, with only 70 cents in gold back of each dollar. Moreover, the gold has been artificially revalued from its original price of $20 an ounce to a fictitious value of $35 an ounce.

It is simple arithmetic to figure that $22 billions of gold certificates means only $9 billions in actual gold, old value. Now, there is about $32 billions of currency in circulation, and the bonded debt is $256 billions, so that for these two forms of debt the total would be $288 billions.

If all the gold in the country were thrown into circulation to try to support the currency and debt, only one person in thirteen would be able to get his money cashed in the inflated gold certificates, or only one person in thirty-two would be able to get actual gold for his holdings.

Picture the scramble! Naturally, everyone would rather have the gold, or even the gold certificates which would be at least partly redeemable in gold, for his present promissory notes, which have been steadily losing their value (go and buy something with them, if you doubt the loss in value).

What would happen to prices? There would be, of course, two standards of prices—one for gold and one for the paper currency. Everyone would be so eager for the gold that prices, for gold, would drop. On the other hand, everyone who had paper money and wanted to buy something he could swap for gold would be willing to give almost any price, in paper money, for it—so that the paper-money prices would soar.

How can one be sure these things would happen? For a very simple reason. They have always happened in inflation—every time, when there has been real money competing with imitation money. That is why, of course, when the New Dealers decided, back in 1933, to try inflation, the first step they took was to make the possession of gold (in any monetary form) a most serious crime.

But the important thing to understand is that all these disastrous events, and the panic they would cause, would not be the result of any bad qualities about gold, or any argument why a nation such as the United States should not be on the gold standard—shouldn't have abandoned it, in fact.

THE INTRODUCTION OF GOLD CURRENCY WOULD SIMPLY "SHOW UP" THE REAL NATURE OF OUR PRESENT CURRENCY.

It isn't that gold is evil. But that our currency and national credit have been inflated to a point where only artificial and risky methods are able to keep them functioning.

The "if" suggestion about gold simply offers a very interesting yardstick for measuring the extent of our inflation.

When the New Deal came into office, any person in this country who had paper money of any kind, or who had any variety of government bonds could, if he wished and cared to take the trouble, cash every dollar of it for a dollar's worth of gold.

In fifteen years, inflation has pushed ahead to the point where there is only a trifle more than three cents worth of gold, old value, back of our currency and national debt.

And every variety of inflation is being shoved ahead rapidly every day by the fiscal policies of the present administration in Washington.

On a heavy-duty job,
give me new Advance-Design
CHEVROLET TRUCKS
and here's a "load" of reasons why . . .

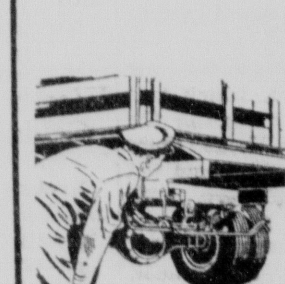

Only Advance-Design
Trucks Have All These
New and finer Features:

- ★ Cab that "breathes"
- ★ Flexi-Mounted cab
- ★ Unwield, all-steel construction
- ★ Larger, more durable, fully adjustable seat
- ★ 22% greater visibility
- ★ New, rear-corner windows
- ★ Stronger, new frames
- ★ Full-floating hypoid rear axles
- ★ Specially designed hydraulic truck brakes
- ★ Valve-in-Head Thrift-Master or Load-Master engines
- ★ More efficient loading (stake and high-rack bodies)
- ★ New, thorough sealing insulation
- ★ Standard cab-to-axle-length dimensions permitting interchange of bodies
- ★ . . . and MANY more!

Brother, how these stronger, new frames stand-up! Wheel-bases are longer, too, for better load distribution. And the brakes are exclusively designed for greater brake-lining contact!

Here's a special, heavy-duty job and an extra-special truck! Take your pick from 107 different models and eight wheel-bases. There's one made for your special kind of job.

There's nothing like the cab that "breathes" for comfort! . . . fresh air is drawn in from the outside—heated in cold weather—and used air is forced out. The cab is cushioned on rubber—Flexi-Mount—with 12 inches more foot room and eight inches more seating space. There's 22% greater visibility, too, they tell me. The seat is fully adjustable. Man, this is it!

Look — rear-corner windows! Now it's a cinch to look up without jackknifing. Yes, sir, these trucks are brand new—really different with Advance-Design. And they're packed with power in the world's most economical engine for its size—Chevrolet's Valve-in-Head engine. *Free air heating and ventilating system and rear-corner windows optional at extra cost.

Come in and see these trucks—today! There's a Chevrolet Advance-Design truck to meet your specific needs and offer you TRANSPORTATION UNLIMITED!

FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1948

505-507 A. D.

Man is a great hand at predicting. It is a favorite avocation and, sometimes, a true vocation. It is indulged in, with varying degrees of success, by sports editors, commentators, columnists, politicians, economists and a legion of others,
scholars included.

It is not a new art. Even the ancient Greeks had a bent for it, and their imaginative genius and spirit of disinterested inquiry sometimes gave birth to the most ingenious speculations. Anaxi-mander, for instance, actually scored a newshat on the modern theory of the evolution of life. Yet he operated within narrow horizons, in a world where a few years back and a few miles ahead brought him to the unknown.

Today our knowledge of the past has been extended to the dawn of human history—and beyond. We have evidence that man departed from an anthropoid status a million years ago, perhaps more, and we have traced his gradual evolution into the form in which we see him today.

Which brings us out of the Miocene period of geological history, and to the prediction of Dr.
Harry L. Shapiro, chairman of the Anthropology Department of the Museum of Natural History in New York, that a half million years from now man's head will be round as a marble and just as bald. "Sparsely covered with hair," is the way he actually put it.

Dr. Shapiro is a learned man, and he draws on the wisdom of the ages for his glimpse into the future. But we earnestly hope that in this prognostication he has come an anthropological cropper.

COLD FIGHTERS

The war against the cold has been going on for so long that its beginnings are lost in antiquity.
From time to time science has developed a weapon that looked good and raised hopes of victory, only to confess later that the deadlock was still unbroken. To date this scourge is unconquered.

Now comes an especially encouraging communique from one sector of the front. The United States Public Health Service reports that science has isolated the agent producing one type of cold
—the type known as sinusitis—and has been able to transmit the element to others by using this agent. Science has also been able to grow the agent in eggs and use the product to infect persons free of colds.

All this has been done by Dr.
Norman H. Topping and Leon T.
Atlas, working with human volunteers at the Lorton Reformulatory, Washington, D. C. Meanwhile Dr. R. W. G. Wyckoff has made preliminary electron microscope observations in which, he says, he saw "characteristic particles of the same general size as the viruses of the influenza type but readily distinguishable from them." His work seems to bear out similar results reported from Britain.

If jaw movement controls facial muscles, as a scientist says, why don't politicians move handsome?

"If" and Gold

But there is a still stronger reason, though perhaps harder to see, why the process is inflationary. This "money" isn't money at all, in the sense of itself having inherent value (like gold) or of being redeemable in a stated amount of a commodity having stable value.

The money is evidence of debt. It was issued by the process called "deficit financing", which means that the government borrows money, and then on this debt issued both some form of bond and a certain amount of paper currency. The wording of the Federal Reserve bills proves this beyond question: they say on them, in the purest English, that they are a promise to pay—that they are, in effect, no more than promissory notes against the general credit of the government.

Now, when a bank or an individual with large debts outstanding come in possession of some of the notes, what is done with them?

They are destroyed, of course. Doing anything else with them is inflationary, and especially dangerous because it is not so recognized. Turning them over for War Bonds is just swapping one debt for another. The fact of the matter is that the national currency is just as much a part of the national debt as the debt itself—and much more hazardous.

With this background, let's go back to the proposition of issuing some of the nation's gold as money.

"If" this were done, what would happen?
The process would be simple, as stated above. Instead of using the "cash" in the Treasury to retire bonds, gold could be issued.

The effect of such an act, in our present stage of national finances, would be disastrous. A panic would result. Very likely the entire structure of government credit would be undermined.
And what that would mean can be hinted by remembering that banks and insurance companies have tremendous portions of their assets—up to two-thirds of them—invested in government securities.

Trying to picture what would happen, and why, is one of the best approaches to understanding how very far Uncle Sam has travelled along the crimson path of inflation.

To begin with, every person who had any currency in his possession would join in the scramble to swap it for gold. If War Bonds were redeemable in gold, every holder would fall in line to turn his in.

Is that clear? Moreover, there wouldn't begin to be enough gold to go around. While the Treasury lists $22 billions of it, most or all of this is in the form of gold certificates, with only 70 cents in gold back of each dollar. Moreover, the gold has been artificially revalued from its original price of $20 an ounce to a fictitious value of $35 an ounce.

It is simple arithmetic to figure that $22 billions of gold certificates means only $9 billions in actual gold, old value. Now, there is about $32 billions of currency in circulation, and the bonded debt is $256 billions, so that for these two forms of debt the total would be $288 billions.

If all the gold in the country were thrown into circulation to try to support the currency and debt, only one person in thirteen would be able to get his money cashed in the inflated gold certificates, or only one person in thirty-two would be able to get actual gold for his holdings.

Picture the scramble! Naturally, everyone would rather have the gold, or even the gold certificates which would be at least partly redeemable in gold, for his present promissory notes, which have been steadily losing their value (go and buy something with them, if you doubt the loss in value).

What would happen to prices? There would be, of course, two standards of prices—one for gold and one for the paper currency. Everyone would be so eager for the gold that prices, for gold, would drop. On the other hand, everyone who had paper money and wanted to buy something he could swap for gold would be willing to give almost any price, in paper money, for it—so that the paper-money prices would soar.

How can one be sure these things would happen? For a very simple reason. They have always happened in inflation—every time, when there has been real money competing with imitation money. That is why, of course, when the New Dealers decided, back in 1933, to try inflation, the first step they took was to make the possession of gold (in any monetary form) a most serious crime.

But the important thing to understand is that all these disastrous events, and the panic they would cause, would not be the result of any bad qualities about gold, or any argument why a nation such as the United States should not be on the gold standard—shouldn't have abandoned it, in fact.

THE INTRODUCTION OF GOLD CURRENCY WOULD SIMPLY "SHOW UP" THE REAL NATURE OF OUR PRE-SENT CURRENCY.

It isn't that gold is evil, but that our currency and national credit have been inflated to a point where only artificial and risky methods are able to keep them functioning.

The "if" suggestion about gold simply offers a very interesting yardstick for measuring the extent of our inflation.

When the New Deal came into office, any person in this country who had paper money of any kind, or who had any variety of government bonds could, if he wished and cared to take the trouble, cash every dollar of it for a dollar's worth of gold.

In fifteen years, inflation has pushed ahead to the point where there is only a trifle more than three cents worth of gold, old value, back of our currency and national debt.

And every variety of inflation is being shoved ahead rapidly every day by the fiscal policies of the present administration in Washington.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Theodore Kohlmeier
Pastor
St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Croydon, Pa.

Lord Jesus who at the time of the wedding in Cana of Galilee by Thy holy presence and by Thy first miracle didst bless the holy estate of matrimony, we praise and thank Thee for Thy great loving kindness to the fallen sons of men because Thou art concerned not only about our eternal happiness for which Thou didst come to suffer and die, but also about our temporal earthly joy and welfare. Teach us to regard the ordinance of marriage as a divine and not a mere human institution. Do Thou also shower blessings upon all marriages that are entered upon properly according to Thy will. We ask it for the sake of Thy great love. Amen.

Pastor

Lord Jesus who at the time of the wedding in Cana of Galilee by Thy holy presence and by Thy first miracle didst bless the holy estate of matrimony, we praise and thank Thee for Thy great loving kindness to the fallen sons of men because Thou art concerned not only about our eternal happiness for which Thou didst come to suffer and die, but also about our temporal earthly joy and welfare. Teach us to regard the ordinance of marriage as a divine and not a mere human institution. Do Thou also shower blessings upon all marriages that are entered upon properly according to Thy will. We ask it for the sake of Thy great love. Amen.

Sportsmen's Briefs

By Joe Elbertson

They're biting... for more than a week now the suckers have been biting below the dam on the Nesquehanna River at Humeville, and the genuine dyed-in-the-wool anglers (those who care not how cold or unpleasant the weather may be) have been taking some nice fish.

Sucker fishing will continue to occupy the limelight locally for many weeks to come, probably tapering off sometime in late April. Worms are the principal bait used. If you find the ground a little difficult to dig now try some of the little ring-circled worms found in barnyards.

Recent stocking... three dozen cottontails were received by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, and a like number by the Edgely Rod & Gun Club, from the Pennsylvania Game Commission recently for stocking in local open hunting territory. A few of the rabbits were dead on arrival but the majority were in good condition.

More bunnies... have been advised that the Newportville Fish & Game Protective Association recently released 90 cottontails in this section. These rabbits were purchased with club funds. The areas stocked were the same sections in which the Bristol and Edgely clubs released a portion of the pheasant these two clubs raised last year.

Post-season outlook... a survey among local hunters reveals that not too many cock pheasants weathered the November gunning season. In several sections, however, a few of them have been noted. Hen pheasants, on the other hand, are showing up better than expected, with some localities reporting flocks of ten to fifteen birds.

Contest winners... here are the winners of the various divisions of the 1947 fishing contest conducted by the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association for its members.

Double honors went to George Effing, who won first prize in both the bass and pickerel divisions. Effing has won the bass division honors for three straight years. His entry in this division for 1947 weighed 5 pounds, 5 ounces. His winning pickerel entry weighed 2 pounds.

Double honors also went to Paul Gerhart and Norman Morris. Gerhart took first prize in the non-game fish division with a 4 pound, 2 ounce catfish, and second prize in the trout division with a 1 pound, 6 ounce trout. Morris was second in both the bass and pickerel divisions. His bass entry tipped the scales at 3 pounds, 6 ounces, and his pickerel entry weighed 1 pound, 8 ounces.

Howard Asay was first place winner in the trout division with a 1 pound, 12 ounce fish. There were no entries in the salt water division.

FIFTH WARD CLUB
FACES STRONG TEAM

Fifth Ward Sporting Club will face its sternest opposition of the second round of the Bristol Basketball League tonight when it meets the Falls Alumni quintet in the night-cap of a double-header on the high school floor. In the opening game, Rohm & Haas meets the Croydon Vets. The latter game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Fifth Ward is in a deadlock with Rohm & Haas for first place and as the chemical mixers are practically certain to whip the Vets, the Warders must top the Falls boys to maintain their tied position. Should both Fifth Ward and Rohm & Haas suffer defeats, then there will be a four-way tie for first place.

The Alumni team is fighting to keep in the league race and must come through with a triumph or drop into sixth place along with St. Ann's.
